WHAT A CATCH

Kathryn Maroun produces, directs and hosts this 13-part series which takes viewers game fishing in remote places. In the first episode, Maroun, a casting instructor certified by the Federation of Fly Fishers, is in Patagonia at the tip of Argentina, coaxing brown trout in the narrow waters of the Rio Chico. Later, she trackles taimen in Mongolia and Atlantic salmon in Labrador.

SATURDAY, JAN. 5, 7 P.M., DISCOVERY CHANNEL

OUT IN THE COLD

Barry Kennedy helps build the Quebec Ice Hotel in the first episode of Out in the Cold. The six-part series, with back-to-back episodes on three consecutive Saturdays, takes Kennedy across the Canadian North to work with those who make a living in the cold outdoors. In the second episode, he travels to Newfoundland to join a group of mariners called iceberg cowboys as they wrangle a big one. Later, he's in the Yukon learning to operate a bush plane and care for sled dogs.

MONDAY, JAN. 7, 10:30 P.M., VISION TV

RECREATING EDEN

This series about gardeners and their creations begins its fifth season with a tour of one of the oldest Japanese gardens in Canada, the Hatley Park garden at Royal Roads University in Victoria, B.C., with caretaker and historian Paul Allison.

FISHING ADVENTURER

Cyril Chauquet catches tarpon in Cuba in this first episode of Fishing Adventurer. The 13-part series follows the avid angler to the best fishing spots around the world. In Cuba, Chauquet and his friend Filipe venture into the Hatiguanico river system in pursuit of tarpon, a large coastal fish. In later episodes, he's in the Orinoco Delta in Venezuela fishing for freshwater peacock bass and for jack crevalle from oil-drilling platforms in southern Louisiana.
